“Perceptions Kill!: The Impacts of Implicit Racial Bias”

LOCATION: Pigott Hall, Seattle University

Welcome to this year’s 11th Annual Seattle Race Conference: “Perceptions Kill! The Impacts of Implicit Racial Bias”. The mission of the Seattle Race Conference is to provide a place for education, discourse and community to address Racial Bias. This year’s theme reflects the events in Seattle and the world around us, and we are striving to create a conference that will support our collective moving forward in combating implicit racial bias and consequent barriers.

Over the last year the Seattle Race Conference planning committee found that we needed to look inward and acknowledge that the committee also reflected our society. It is no accident that after much work we decided to focus on implicit racial bias for the Conference theme this year. We believe we have emerged with greater awareness and commitment, but the journey and struggles in moving forward are not ended, and our committee’s internal work is not finished. We will continue to look inward as well as outward as we move forward with the Seattle Race Conference’s mission.

To submit a workshop or presentation proposal for this year’s Seattle Race Conference, we invite you to go to: <http://seattleraceconference.org> and download the RFP. The deadline has been extended to July 30th. Given the importance of the impacts of implicit racial bias, we encourage you consider being part of the conference if you are doing work in some way related to this year’s theme.

REGISTRATION IS NOW OPEN. Pre-registration for Saturday’s Conference is $25. Students and youth under 21 attend for $10, with partial scholarships available. You can pre-register at: <http://www.brownpapertickets.com/event/1581639>.

See you at this year’s conference!

Submissions, questions/and inquiries about the conference or newsletters should be sent to: info@seattleraceconference.org.
